

Option 1:

An Innocent Man on Ohio's Death Row

Kevin Keith is on Ohio's death row, facing execution on September 15, 2010, despite compelling new evidence of his actual innocence. The new evidence suggests that Mr. Keith was wrongfully convicted of a crime he did not commit based on faulty eyewitness identification – the leading cause of wrongful convictions nationwide. He has an alibi for the time of the crime supported by four witnesses. Prominent supporters from around the country have urged review in Mr. Keith's case, including the National Innocence Network, the Ohio Innocence Project, and a group of leading eyewitness and memory experts.

Please read more about Kevin Keith's case and sign the petition urging the Ohio Parole Board and Governor Strickland to grant clemency to Mr. Keith at:
www.kevinkeith.org

---

Option 2:

An Innocent Man on Ohio's Death Row

Kevin Keith is on Ohio's death row, facing execution on September 15, 2010, despite compelling new evidence of his actual innocence. The new evidence suggests that Mr. Keith was wrongfully convicted of a crime he did not commit based on faulty eyewitness identification – the leading cause of wrongful convictions nationwide. He has an alibi for the time of the crime supported by four witnesses. Prominent supporters from around the country have urged review in Mr. Keith's case, including the National Innocence Network, an affiliation of over 50 innocence projects and legal organizations around the country, the Ohio Innocence Project, an organization that typically only works on non-death penalty cases involving DNA evidence, and a group of leading eyewitness and memory experts.

Please read more about Kevin Keith's case and sign the petition urging the Ohio Parole Board and Governor Strickland to grant clemency to Mr. Keith at:
www.kevinkeith.org