Deacon Shelby Friend is a dynamic speaker in the Diocese of Cleveland. He was selected as the March, '09 author of the month by the National Black Catholic Congress and his book Trouble Don't Last Always is their book of the month. Check out his recent article <http://www.nbccongress.org/catholic-youth/where-youre-going.asp> that is the inspiration for his Theology on Tap talk. He says, “Pay attention to the signs that are posted on your road to success. Many people who have traveled and tested the roads that lead to success believe these signs are sent by God Himself to make them visible to us.” Deacon Shelby's home parish is Holy Spirit in Garfield Heights, a new parish resulting from the merger of three others. He is married to Maxine G. Friend and is the father of three and the grandfather of six.

Theology on Tap is a discussion series for Catholic young adults and their friends, married and single, in their 20s and 30s. It is coordinated in the Diocese of Cleveland by the Associate Board, young professionals engaged with Catholic Charities Health and Human Services, in collaboration with the Diocesan Youth and Young Adult Ministry and CYO Office. Theology on Tap is a registered trademark of RENEW International, www.theologyontap.com, 908-769-5400x159.
